From the President

Time flies. Seems like just yesterday that I started typing my first president's letter with the words, "Time to start over, again." I can't believe it's been a year.

This job has been a lot of work, a lot of fun, and, most of all, a great opportunity to work with and meet some great Denton Lawyers. Even though several past presidents tried to tell me how much time this job takes, I was still surprised. Most often, though, it was in a good way. It's easy, especially in our business, to put your head down for weeks, months (years?) at a time, and, all of a sudden, you look up and realize you don't know half the lawyers you see at the Courthouse. Being president has been a great opportunity to get out and meet some of these "new" lawyers, shake hands with colleagues I haven't talked to in a while, and just re-immense myself in the best local bar association in Texas.

I've had a lot of help this year and would be remiss if I didn't thank our great board of directors. My executive committee—Ted Ogilvie, Amie Peace, Travis Biggs, and Vicki Isaacks—won't know what to do without all my extra meetings on their schedules. The rest of the board, including our ex-officio members and our District and County administrative judges, have put hours of hard work into planning parties, charitable and pro bono events, and just keeping our ever growing association alive and kicking. Our Bench Bar Committee, headed by Kimberly Killebrew, likewise burned the midnight oil planning this year's event, which was our furthest foray from the cozy comfort of our humble county.

The DCBA's as strong as it's ever been. We're at an all-time membership high, we are continually offering bigger and better events, and have a list of member benefits unrivaled by other bar associations our size. We have an excellent executive director staff working to keep things firing on all cylinders. And, most importantly, after seeing the dedication of our officers and directors this year, I know I couldn't be leaving the bar in better hands. Can't wait to see what's next!

How to Get Your Veteran into Veterans Court

Forrest Beadle, Assistant District Attorney for Denton County

Step 1: Initial case review by DA's Office

Step 1 actually begins after the veteran defendant is identified either by law enforcement, the District Attorney's (DA) Office, veteran's organizations, or defense counsel. During Step 1, the prosecutor verifies that veteran is charged with a crime eligible for Veterans Court and begins the investigation into the causal connection between the alleged crime and the veteran's post traumatic stress disorder (PTSD). The veteran's defense counsel should schedule a meeting with the prosecutor and bring a copy of the veteran's DD-214 for the DA's file and any medical documentation that verifies the veteran's PTSD diagnosis. If the veteran has not been diagnosed, he is not barred from Veterans Court, but he may need to be referred to the VA for a PTSD screening before continuing. If the veteran passes the DA's Office initial screening, the defense counsel will receive the Veterans Treatment Court Program (VTCP) Booklet and instructions to contact Denton County Community Supervision and Corrections Department (CSCD) to be screened for Veterans Court.

Documents needed

- A copy of veteran's DD-214
- PTSD medical records

Document received

- Defense counsel will receive a copy of VTCP Booklet

Step 2A: Veterans Court Screening Report

prepared by the Denton County CSCD and initial recommendation to the DA's Office

Your veteran will need to contact the Veterans Court Screening Officer at the Denton County CSCD and schedule an interview. Prior to arriving for that interview, the veteran will need to fill out the forms contained in the VTCP Booklet and turn them into the CSCD in order for the screening officer to have time to review those documents along with the DA's case file. This documentation includes a waiver allowing the Veterans Screening Report to be released to defense counsel, third party doctors, and eventually the Court and the State in accordance with the process described. The veteran will then attend an interview at the supervision department.

Documents needed

- A copy of veteran's DD-214
- PTSD medical records
- All forms contained in the VTCP Booklet, including the waiver signed copy by both the veteran and the veteran's counsel of record that allows the release of the Veterans Screening Report.

Documents received

- Referral form for Dr. Overstreet (Center for Therapeutic Change)

The screening officer will prepare a Veterans Court Screening Report after the interview. The screening officer will not make this report available to the State at this time; however, the defense attorney will receive a copy of the report in order to advise their client. After the screening officer's evaluation is complete, the officer will contact the DA's Office and either recommend or not recommend that the veteran continue in the process. If the screening officer recommends that the veteran continue, the veteran and their attorney will be informed and instructed to contact Dr. Overstreet or another third-party doctor for further evaluation.

Reports prepared

- Veterans Court Screening Report (Defense counsel only)

Step 2B: Screen and diagnosis by Dr. Overstreet (Third-party Therapist)

The veteran will contact Dr. Overstreet at the Center for Therapeutic Change in Tarrant County and schedule an interview. Dr. Overstreet is an independent contractor and does charge approximately $250-$350 for this evaluation. The veteran will need to pay for this expense, but if you have an indigent client, contact the DA's Office for possible assistance. Dr. Overstreet will prepare a report that evaluates the veteran's fitness for the court. This report will be returned to the screening officer who will make the final report available to both the State and defense counsel.

Note: Dr. Overstreet is currently the Veterans Court's only third-party doctor.

Veterans Court

Reports prepared

- Dr. Overstreet's Mental Health Assessment (Both parties receive)

Step 3: Veterans Court Screening Officer's Final recommendation to DA's Office

The screening officer reviews Dr. Overstreet's report and makes his final recommendation to the DA's Office.

Step 4: DA's Office review of Dr. Overstreet's Report

After the DA's Office reviews Dr. Overstreet's report, the CSCD's recommendation, and the case file, and they will make their decision to continue the veteran or not in the process.

Step 5: Treatment Plan developed by the VTCP Supervision Officer and the VA VJO

At this stage, since the DA's Office and CSCD have recommended that the veteran proceed into Veterans Court, it is time to develop their individualized treatment plan. The Veterans Court Probation Officer in conjunction with the Veterans Justice Outreach (VJO) Officer from the VA will prepare the veteran's treatment plan. This will include a Family Study. When completed, the Veterans Court supervision officer will forward the plan to both the State and defense counsel. Defense counsel will review the treatment plan with their veteran client.

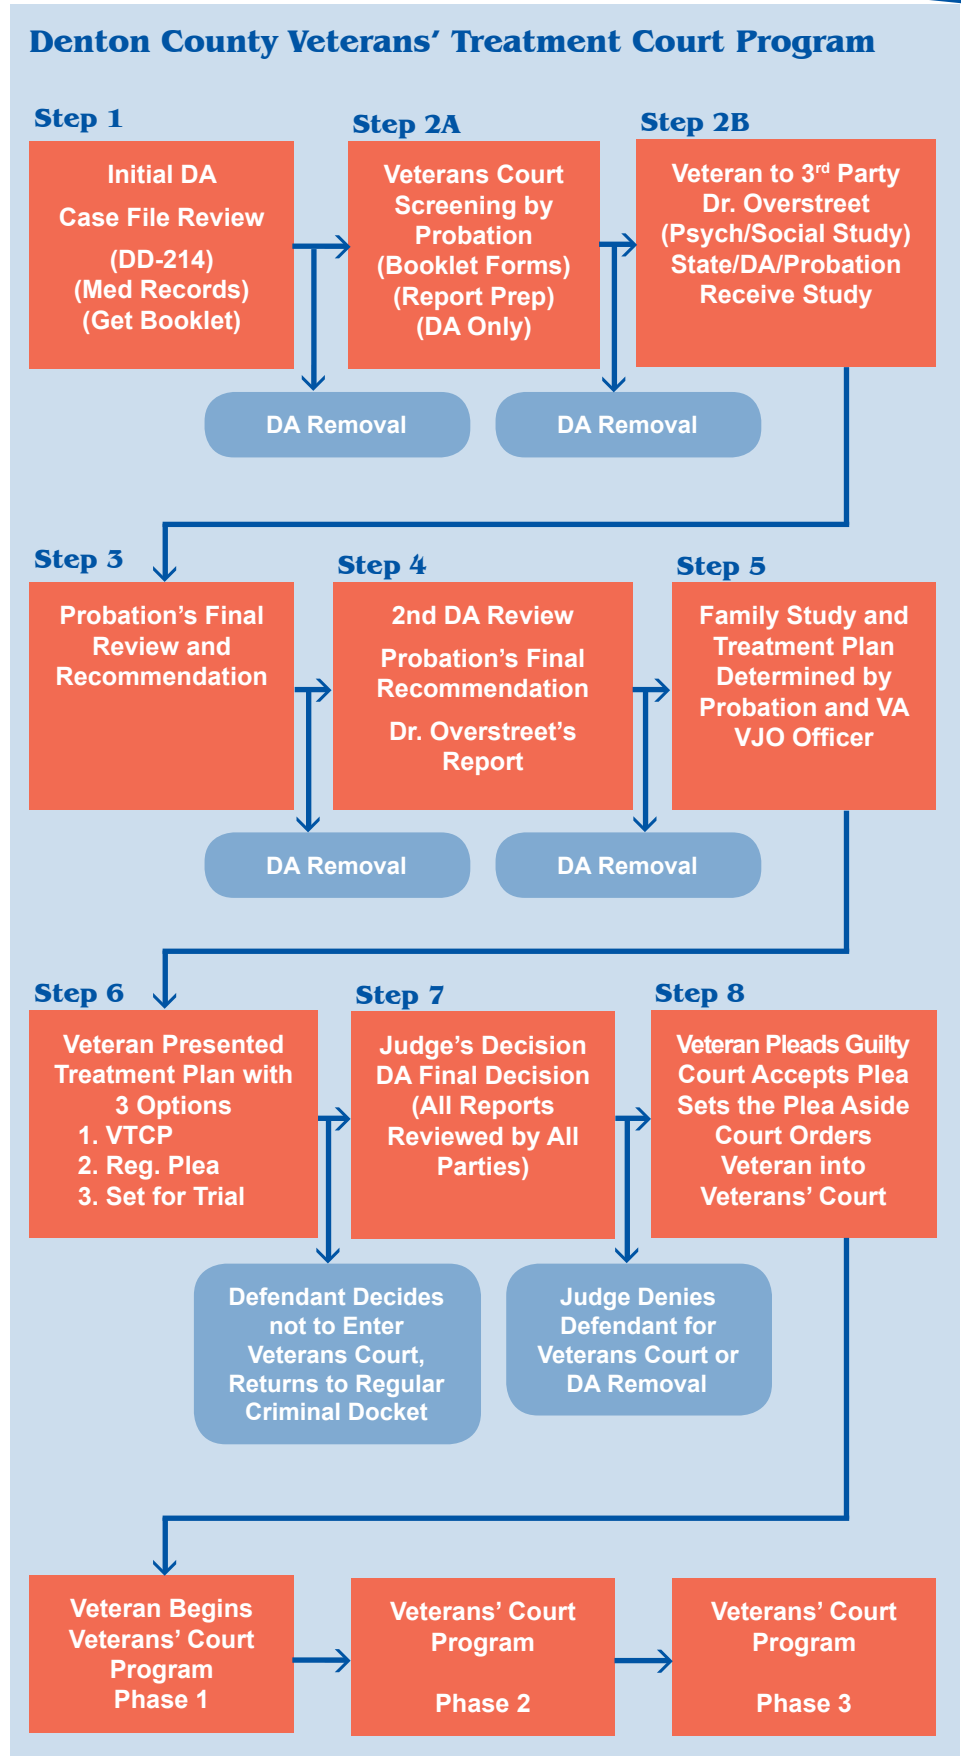

Reports prepared

- Veteran's Integrated Treatment Plan (Both sides receive)

Step 6: Veteran's Decision

Defense counsel will have three options to present to their veteran. The

The Purpose of Veterans Court

By Joe Zellmer, Joseph A. Zellmer, Attorney at Law, www.zellmerlaw.com.

In 2009, the Texas state legislature authorized the establishment of Veterans Courts (Chapter 617 of the Health and Safety Code). In 2012, Denton County Veterans Court (DCVC) was established, with Judge David Garcia presiding over the Denton County Veterans Treatment Court Program.

Section 617.002 states that “a defendant is eligible to participate in a veterans court program established under this chapter only if the attorney representing the state consents to the defendant’s participation in the program and if the court in which the criminal case is pending finds that the defendant:

1. is a veteran or current member of the United States armed forces, including a member of the reserves, national guard, or state guard; and
2. suffers from brain injury, mental illness, or mental disorder, including post-traumatic stress disorder, that:
 - a. resulted from the defendant’s military service in a combat zone or other similar hazardous duty area;
 - b. materially affected the defendant’s criminal conduct at issue in the case.” As can be seen, eligibility is more limited than just being a veteran.

The general purpose of the Veterans Court is to assist veterans in receiving alcohol, controlled substance, mental health, and other related treatment and rehabilitative services. It is not a “get out of jail free” card nor is it easier than probation. It is a comprehensive and coordinated program to assist the veteran in getting help for the issues that led to the criminal activity. The DCVC consists of the judge, an assistant district attorney, representatives from the defense bar, Denton County Probation office, Veterans Administration, Denton County Veterans Office, MHMR, and a private licensed counselor. This group works as a team to make such determinations as:

- whether the veteran is a good fit for the program;
- what treatment options are available;
- what the treatment plan should be;
- how to monitor the veteran’s progress;
- whether the veteran has successfully completed a phase of the program; and many more.

In addition to this, the members of the defense bar that are part of this team are there to ensure that the participants’ rights are protected while in the program.

From a defense perspective, the veteran is represented by his or her own attorney whether the attorney is privately retained or court appointed. The veteran’s attorney will represent the veteran from the beginning of the case through the plea before Judge Garcia. At the time of the plea, the court will accept the plea, set it aside, and then order the veteran into DCVC. Please note that “being ordered into DCVC” is mostly ministerial in that by this time, the veteran has already asked for, qualified for, and has chosen to be a part of the DCVC. At the time of the plea, there is no finding of guilt. If the veteran successfully completes the Veterans Court Treatment Program and the Court determines that a dismissal is in the best interest of justice, the court in which the criminal case is pending will dismiss the criminal action against the veteran.

Congratulations, Elizabeth!

The Denton County Bar Association is proud to announce some very exciting news—one of our own, Elizabeth Frost, office assistant for both the DCBA and DCAP, has been accepted (early) to the SMU Dedman School of Law. We tried to talk her out of lawyerin’, but Elizabeth sent in her application to SMU anyway. She received an impressive recommendation letter from Senator Hutchinson, with whom Elizabeth had interned from January 2012 to May 2012, and she was accepted within a month! She will begin her exciting journey this coming Fall! When you’re at the offices, please stop by and offer your congratulations to her. We’re all proud of you, Elizabeth!

DCBA is now Social on Facebook

It's official; the Denton County Bar Association has taken root in Facebook! We now have a Facebook Page and a Group, and we invite all bar members to join both.

Why do we need both? Pages and Groups on Facebook offer different functions and services. With the Facebook Page, we can have a stronger social media presence to publicly announce all of the great things we, as a Bar, are doing for and around Denton County. We can use the Page to post photos from events, announce the number of community service events we host throughout the year, such as Texas Lawyers for Texas Veterans and the Kinship Fair, and publicly praise our lawyers' proud accomplishments outside the courtroom. Anyone outside of the Bar can "like" the page and keep up with all the great things we do. In other words, it can be fantastic PR for us.

A Facebook Group, on the other hand, is more of a forum for members to discuss the Group's topic. For us, our Group will be completely private, so only Bar members can see posts and join the Group. All members will have to be approved by a Group administrator, so we can ensure only active Bar members can participate in our discussions.

The Group will be a great benefit for all members, because it will provide a centralized location for all discussions regarding the Bar. Here we can converse about upcoming events, propose future events, vote on issues outside of our monthly meetings, and discuss anything that pertains to the Bar at any time.

You can find our Facebook Page at www.facebook.com/DentonBar and you can request to join our Group at www.facebook.com/groups/dentonbar. We hope each of you with a Facebook account will take a like and join us!

veteran can proceed into the Veterans Court, accept the State's original plea offer, or reject both and set the case for trial.

Documents received

- VTCP Participant Agreement and Performance Contract.
- VTCP Program Fees Agreement
- VTCP Integrated Treatment Plan

Step 7: Final Decision by the DA's Office and Presiding Judge

If the veteran accepts the treatment plan and volunteers to participate in the Veterans Court, a final meeting is held to determine whether or not the veteran will be admitted into the program. At this time, the Court, the State, the defense, the VA, and adult probation will review all of the forms and reports including the Veterans Court Screening Report and make their final decision. Even at this stage, the DA's Office has the right to deny a veteran entrance into Veterans Court. If the State does not object, the Presiding Judge will make the final determination to accept the veteran's application and admit them into Veterans Court.

Documents received

- Both DA's Office and Presiding Judge receive all reports including the Veterans Court Screening Report

Step 8: Plea of Guilty and Court Order placing veteran into Veterans Court

Once accepted, the veteran will appear in court on their scheduled date, sign the required regular plea paperwork, and plead guilty to their offense(s). The Presiding Judge of Veterans Court or of the court of jurisdiction of a felony case will accept their plea, make no finding of guilt, and order them to participate in Veterans Court. The veteran will begin Phase One of treatment immediately.

Documents signed

- VTCP Participant Agreement and Performance Contract
- VTCP Program Fees Agreement
- VTCP Integrated Treatment Plan
- Appropriate plea paperwork for the crime charged.

Note: Your Veteran is not excused from any court appearances or bond directives while the screening process is pending.

Practicing Law in Denton is a Wonderful Life

Part of a member perspectives series. By Camille Milner, S. Camille Milner, PC, www.milner-law.com.

Recently, a dear friend died at the age of 59 as a result of a freak accident, and another friend said she is “winding down” her career. Both those situations caused me to reflect on my life and practice here in Denton for the past nearly 30 years. There is a book that came out at Christmas called 52 Life Lessons from ‘It’s a Wonderful Life’. I recommend it to you, because it is filled with stories that remind me of why living in and practicing law in Denton with all of you is a wonderful life.

First, I love lawyers, but especially you, Denton County lawyers. I think to fully appreciate being a lawyer in Denton, you have to understand how rare it is to find the camaraderie that Denton County lawyers have. Growing up, I never really had any other ambition than to be a lawyer, so this fraternity/sorority with all of you has made my career even better than I would have imagined—you are my family. My husband, Tim Crouch, has always said that the reason I ended up in family law is because it particularly enabled me to have an amicable relationship with lawyers on the opposite sides of cases. In family law in Denton in the early 1980s, there were not nearly as many lawyers here as there are today, and you couldn’t very comfortably be enemies with the other side’s lawyer, because you were going to have to face that other lawyer again on another case, sooner rather than later. Now that I am doing collaborative work, this component of having an amicable relationship with the “other side” is even more important. In collaborative cases, both lawyers are advocates for their clients, but the clients, their lawyers and the other professionals in the case are all also working toward an out-of-court resolution for the family, so the ability to work with the other lawyer is critical for the success of these cases.

Second, practicing law in the city of Denton is unique. I guess it is my version of Mayberry or Bedford Falls. I have lived here since 1963 and watched a lot change, but while Denton has changed for the better in many ways, it has found a way to keep the “good stuff” that we wouldn’t want to ever change. My husband also says that, even though Denton has grown a lot, the number of people who live and work here is still a pretty small and tightly woven group. I love that most of my clients somehow find their way to me from either being or knowing someone I grew up with.

I loved having my first office at 207 W. Hickory, on the southwest corner of Denton’s square, with my window looking out on the Old Courthouse; that office building had once been the Old Russell’s store, where I shopped as a child—it was kind of Denton’s version of Neiman Marcus. While that building was being renovated into offices in the summer of 1982, I was clerking for Kelsey, Wood, Gregory, Duncan and Holt, in what is now the Wells Fargo tower, and I looked over at that old Russell’s store building and dreamed of one day being a sole practitioner there. It tickled me that my office was later located in what had once been the china and crystal department of that store. I love now working at 620 W. Hickory, in the historic district of Denton, looking out my office window onto the historic homes on Oak Street. I wrote history papers about those houses (and their ghosts) when I was a student at Congress Junior High (now Calhoun Middle School) and took tours of them, including a walking tour with one of the original residents of the Evers Mansion on West Oak Street. I loved watching each of my sons walk “home” to my office at the end of their school days at Calhoun Middle School, just two blocks away.

As a Young Lawyer

Part of a member perspectives series. By Eric Navarette, Koons Fuller, PC, www.koonsfuller.com.

As a young attorney, my practice has grown from practicing in West Texas to practicing all over the Metroplex as well as the state of Texas. I have called Denton County “home” since January 2010. When I came to Denton County, I was welcomed with open arms. Since moving here, my practice has thrived as both a collaborative and litigation family law attorney.

When I moved my practice here from Lubbock, Texas, I found that the Denton County Bar Association maintains a collegial and professional presence that is appealing to young attorneys. It was a seamless transition to get involved with the Denton County Young Lawyers and DCBA. Everywhere I turned and everywhere I continue to look, people were and are willing to help when they are needed.

When I am at the courthouse, the Denton County judges remind me of my professors at St. Mary’s University and Texas Tech School of Law. These judges are approachable and generally tend to have what seems to be an “open door policy.” They maintain the integrity of the bench and teach without knowing it.

Denton County is a place where young attorneys can make a name for themselves. Young attorneys can learn how things were done in the past all while exploring innovative approaches to doing things. Knowing what I have experienced in the short time I have been here, I am confident that my practice will continue to grow alongside the professional and personal relationships I have made in Denton County.

Transitions to Practice Mentoring Group

By Virginia A. Moore, Law Offices of Virginia A. Moore, www.vamlawfirm.com.

This spring was a busy time for the Transitions to Practice Mentoring group. Mentees provided input on what types of topics and experiences would best help them begin or transition their practices in Denton County.

In March, the Transitions Group was fortunate to be able to participate, with the client’s consent, in an actual probate case study involving both a Muniment of Title and an Independent Administration.

Dena Reecer, Denton Board

Certified Estate and Probate Attorney and immediate past President of the Denton County Bar Association, is facilitating notices, filings, and hearings in an educational format for the mentee attorneys interested in practicing in the Statutory Probate Court of Denton County.

April offered an opportunity for Mentees and their Mentor Attorneys to meet on a “one-on-one” basis.

Our final meeting in May will feature a discussion of planning for Board Certification opportunities, participation in leadership options with the Denton County Bar Association, and the possibility of starting a “Solo and Small Firm” group in Denton County.

Registration opportunities for next year’s Transitions class will be available over the summer with the program starting its second season in September 2013. Attorneys licensed for less than five years and practicing in Denton County will be eligible to participate.
